Resumen (200 palabras)

Este curso ofrece una introducción a las pedagogías de mundos comunes. Situadas en el trabajo de Isabelle Stengers y Bruno Latour, pedagogías de mundos comunes son inclusivas de todo aquello que va más allá de lo humano y están interesadas en evitar la típica división entre sociedad y naturaleza. Las pedagogías de mundo comunes se basan en enfoques y metodologías que entienden la relación de la niñez y el lugar como un entrelazado del uno con el otro y tratan de distanciarse de pedagogías basadas en la supremacía humana. Con este fin, el curso está organizado en dos partes. La primera parte se basa en una serie de lecturas y discusiones que nos permitirán problematizar y desestabilizar los preámbulos de los marcos teóricos y enfoques pedagógicos que están a la base de las propuestas pedagógicas del siglo xx. Por ejemplo, estudiantes cuestionarán la psicología del desarrollo, la concentración en la idea del niño como protagonista principal de la relación pedagógica, y la división entre naturaleza y sociedad en relaciones pedagógicas. La segunda parte del curso consistirá en una introducción a las pedagogías de mundos comunes y su intención de responder a las problemáticas socio-ambientales del siglo XXI. En esta segunda parte se estudiarán las inspiraciones teóricas y multidisciplinarias que influencian estas pedagogías. Analizaremos sus propósitos, métodos y prácticas. El estudio y reflexión sobre estas pedagogías estará íntimamente relacionado a discusiones y conversaciones sobre la propuesta de considerar nuestra época como la época del Antropoceno. Durante la segunda parte del curso los estudiantes realizarán una serie de pequeños proyectos basados en estas pedagogías con el fin de cultivar ciertas disposiciones pedagógicas hacia el ethos del lugar donde uno vive. Estos proyectos se apoyarán en las artes contemporáneas como una inspiración que puede ayudar a generar nuevas discusiones e ideas sobre la niñez, la educación y el lugar en el que vivimos.

Palabras clave: siglo XXI pedagogías, mundos comunes, catástrofe climática

2. Other Research Contributions

In the past six years, Dr. Pacini-Ketchabaw has delivered 15 keynote addresses at scholarly conferences. She has coedited 4 special issues of peer-reviewed journals, the most recent one in Gender & Education (2023). She has recorded 6 episodes to date of Rethinking Childhoods, an open-access podcast produced at Western University with the intention of thinking collectively about the construction of concepts such as young child, childhood, children and education. This podcast is assigned in courses in early childhood at other universities (York University, Toronto Metropolitan University, Capilano University).

Since 2011, she has coedited Journal of Childhood Studies, Canada's only peer-reviewed early childhood education journal. Under her guidance and with funding from a SSHRC Aid to Scholarly Journals grant, the journal transitioned to open-access format and tripled the number of annual issues. Since 2015, she has been series coeditor of the Bloomsbury book series Feminist Thought in Childhood Research, which attracts outstanding contributions from early career scholars. She is currently director of the Interdisciplinary Centre for Research in Curriculum as a Social Practice, Western University; providing a space for graduate students at Western's Faculty of Education to debate ideas and engage in multidisciplinary conversations.

Dr. Pacini-Ketchabaw codirects the Early Childhood Pedagogy Network in British Columbia. This network is the first in Canada to create, implement and evaluate the role of the pedagogist. Pedagogists enact situated and dialogical pedagogical projects in early childhood centres.

Dr. Pacini-Ketchabaw also codirected the first Ontario Early Childhood Education Centre of Excellence between 2018 and 2020, shifting early childhood education practices in Ontario and mobilizing the call for transformational change in ECE.
